UK Outlook for Saturday 17 Jul 2021 to Saturday 31 Jul 2021:
As is typical for the time of year, confidence is relatively low for this period, but fine and dry weather for much of the UK is most likely for the rest of July. There is however the possibility that occasional spells of rain may impact north-western areas, with a very low chance of thundery conditions developing at times, likely in the south. Temperatures are likely to be above average for much of this period, with an increased chance of some very warm or hot spells occurring.
